

“LDC Experiences on Working Towards Greater Food Security in a Changing Climate:

Sharing Lessons and Looking Forward”

Jointly organized by the Government of Canada and UNDP

Monday May 26, 2014 | 17:45pm – 19:15

What are LDCs currently doing to address the impacts of climate change on food security targets?

What are some of the successful cases and lessons learned in LDCs that could be scaled up, including in other countries?

How do we ensure the results achieved through public finance have catalytic and long-term impact?

What are some LDCs doing to address climate impacts on food security, while also advancing poverty reduction and increasing income generation?

This side event will shine the light on these and other key questions that are fundamental in the context of food security. It will provide a concrete illustration of the actions taken and impacts achieved by countries with financial assistance from the LDCF and the Government of Canada. The format will be interactive and dynamic, with a panel made up of Government representatives from three countries supported by the Government of Canada and UNDP. The event will include multimedia presentations that will provide a visual understanding of what countries are already doing with funding from the LDCF and Government of Canada and what is still needed to scale up successful adaptation approaches to addressing food security.
